

CHAPTER-11

LIMITATIONS OF POLITICAL BEHAVIORS

In all of the countries any of the political party channels the work culture in a planned manner. The political parties are required to act according to the structure of the constitution. The political parties are required to advocate those principles which lead to widely acceptable behaviors amidst the public. The political parties are required to act as servants of the public. The political parties follow those principles which lead to satisfaction to all manners of people. The values of the political system should lead to a just and fair society which can guide the forefronts of the public to destined ventures.

The political parties should act in to real life hence should inculcate a value culture on basics of truth and welfare. The nature of the political system should be to inculcate values amidst people which lead to total accountability and responsibility on the public front. The political party should advocate principles of justice amidst the public. It is often seen that on account of giving impetus to the business domain the political party channels money to the personal folds of the public on irrational basis. With no grounds of accountability as engrossed in business development lead to wrong recourse to reality. The business in itself is an epitome of truth and justice as extended in to the public domain. The irrationality of money distribution comes to the forefronts as seeking money to the personal fold by the politicians on grounds that they have rendered the problems of the public totally dormant. The attributes of such genres in political system is a clause of theft which associates with the public as well as politicians. The purpose of political system is to generate vigor of existing tools of governance but this act leads to undermining of existing structure of governance. The clause of development underlay in just and right aptitudes in the society but the act of theft demoralizes the potential of the communities. The two ways process of theft has to account for national loss in terms of money and dignified perspectives it supports. By teaching the public lesson of truthful culture we can lead the society to varying dimensions which in case of theft leads to remorseful behaviors.

The policies of the government are justifiable is required to be ensured by the participation of the leading persons of the society. The policies of the government are in clause with reality and are true solutions to the problems is required to be ensured by the participation of leading dignitaries. The government acts are justified should be ensured by putting all laws on the threshold of public certification. The public will have to fight its cause to get its problems solved. The propelling culture should lead the nation to progress and growth. The public should reap fruits of enthusiastic postures and not of degenerated values. The public will have to be vigilant in locating the values of the government. Only these grounds will lead to idealism in society.

A duly elected government cannot give thrust to terrorist activities. The money accredited to the personal folds on grounds of developing business can next channel its course by way of terrorist acts. To ensure complete safety to public works the political party should not consider on distribution of money to the personal folds of the public. The political party should ensure equality of status and opportunity to all. The policies of prejudice will never bring out true self of the public and will never bring about awareness in public. The policies of prejudice lead to tyrants ruling the state which demoralizes the working aptitude of the public. The policy of prejudice manifests in human rights violations and failures of set goals of governance. By prejudice the person can build a mansion but the real dwelling would be like a prisoner.

The prospective technologies of governance can take its course only when the entire system of governance is geared in real domain from beginning till the end of different governments. To ensure continuity to developmental prospects the real domain culture should be manifested by following on set guidelines to the constitution of the country. Thus government coming in and going out of power should ensure the working culture on set lines of governance engrossed in the philosophy of the constitution. The limitations of the political system should be up to the eradication of the problems of the people and basing work culture which manifests as true salvation ground for all range of people.
